Big News!

Clayton Valley Village has been granted its own 501(c)3 non-profit designation. Prior to this, CVV operated under the fiscal sponsorship of the Diablo Valley Foundation on Aging. Thank you to DVFA for your support!

The city of Boston had a huge snowstorm on February 13, but it didn't affect the Clayton Valley Village pre-launch party that afternoon.

The tie-in? The featured speaker for the CVV party, via webcast from Beacon Hill Village, was to be Dr. Atul Gawande, author of bestseller Being Mortal. Snowdrifts prevented Dr. Gawande from reaching the Boston Public Library from which his talk was to be webcast nationwide. So Boston's Beacon Hill Village 15th Anniversary Celebration got "snowed out."

As a quick back-up, the national Village-to-Village network provided its own webcast, with hosts fielding questions on various issues from villages all over the country. CVV got to try out the video projector it plans to purchase, and it worked like the proverbial charm.

Even without the featured webcast speaker, 36 people showed up at the Clayton Library to hear more about the official launch of Clayton Valley Village. CVV President Sonja Wilkin and Past President Jim Whitfield updated the members and friends on progress toward the May 1 opening to be celebrated with a Launch Party that afternoon at Endeavor Hall.

CVV is gathering applications for volunteers to assist in programs and services, initially handyman help, computer and cell phone assistance, and driving members to appointments. Volunteers do not have to be CVV members.

Whitfield explained that anyone joining CVV before May 31, 2017 will receive a $100 discount on membership good through May 31, 2018. These discounted memberships are $500 per year for one person and $800 per year for a household. Founding Members have already received discounts for their lifetime memberships.

February Monthly Mixer at Mel's

CVV friends gathered for the February 21 Monthly Mixer, this time at Mel's Diner on Treat Boulevard. Great burgers and malts. And fun, fun, fun til her Daddy took her T-Bird away. Well, no, this time he didn't. For March, it's Skipolini's in Clayton.
